Program Notes

One of the interesting things about the origin of Messiah is found in the fact that when Handel was writing this signature work in 1741, he, unlike his predecessors Bach and Telemann, was not composing under contract with a church. He was, however, exceptionally popular, having established a stellar reputation in the field of opera. In 1737 waning support for his operas caused Handel to turn toward the development of the oratorio, more as a matter of practicality than religiosity. In most of his other oratorios Handel paraphrased the Biblical texts, focusing on characters and setting them as stories similar to characters in his operas. In Messiah Handel's librettist Jennins sets the text using actual Biblical phrases rather than paraphrasing the text and setting it as "story". The central idea then is not a representation of the life of Christ, but rather a dialogue of the struggle of dark and light and the ultimate redemption of mankind. Tonight's performance focuses on Part I with texts combining the prophecies of Isaiah, Haggai, Malachi and Zechariah and the gospels of Matthew and Luke, juxtaposed against the stirring words of the "Hallelujah" and "Worthy is the Lamb" from the book of Revelations. Though it was originally written to be performed during the Easter season, no Christmas season seems complete without a public performance of this monumental work. It is our hope that this tradition will continue beyond this night.
